Reducing your tax bill

New ways to hang onto more of your hard-earned money.

Whether you live in the mountains, on the prairies or enjoy life in a coastal community, Canada is an amazing country to call home. But the reality is that life in this country is expensive. It's estimated that more than 42 per cent of household income now goes to taxes – more than housing, food and clothing combined.<sup>[1]</sup>

As demands on household budgets continue to increase, it's never been more important to utilize strategies that can help lower your tax bill. While it might feel a bit complicated to figure out, there's a number of tax credits and deductions available. Your advisor or accountant can help you make sense of what will work best for you.

Home office expenses

As thousands of spare bedrooms, dining room tables, and breakfast nooks were quickly converted into makeshift work from home spaces across the country, face to face collaboration became a virtual affair - an ongoing situation for many Canadians. While the isolation from co-workers may feel challenging, a bright spot is that you may be eligible for a work from home deduction.

A new flat rate method introduced by the Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) aims to make it easier to claim work from home expenses for 2020. Those who are eligible can claim $2 for each day they were required to work from home because of the pandemic, up to a maximum of $400. Under the flat rate method, the following criteria must be met:

- Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, you worked from home in 2020, or your employer required you to work from home.
- For at least four consecutive weeks in 2020, you worked more than 50 per cent of the time from home.
- Expenses claimed are directly related to COVID-19 work from home during the specified timeframe.<sup>[2]</sup>

- The flat rate is temporarily available for 2020.
- A T2200 form is required if you plan to use the original detailed method to claim work from home expenses.
- Only one method can be selected, so it's worth using the CRA online calculator to see which method will generate the highest deduction.

Digital News Subscription Tax Credit

During these extraordinary times, staying informed has never been more important, and now there's a tax credit to help offset the costs associated with digital news subscriptions. The Digital News Subscription Tax Credit (DNSTC) can be claimed on personal income tax returns for the years 2020 through 2024. Depending on how much you spend on digital news subscriptions each year, this annual tax credit could realize as much as $75 in savings each year. The tax credit is calculated at 15 per cent, up to a maximum of $500 in annual subscriptions.<sup>[3]</sup> News outlets that qualify for this tax credit must be registered with the CRA.

Canada Training Credit

Upgrading your skills is a smart way to stay current with evolving technology, and a new Canada Training Credit is now available to help with these costs. Beginning in 2020, workers aged 25 to 65 can offset training fees for college, university or an eligible institution providing occupational skills training. Canadians automatically accumulate $250 annually, up to a lifetime maximum of $5,000. To use the credit, workers must have earned income between $10,000 and $150,000 and file a tax return.<sup>[4]</sup>

Pandemic emergency funds

Government funding to help avoid financial hardship brought on by the pandemic has been welcome relief for many households, but this is taxable income that requires your attention. Here are the programs involved:

- Canada Emergency Response Benefit \(CERB\)
- Canada Emergency Student Benefit \(CESB\)
- Canada Recovery Benefit \(CRB\)
- Canada Recovery Sickness Benefit \(CRSB\)

Canada Recovery Caregiver Benefit (C For CERB and CESB, these programs rolled out in the first wave of federal pandemic support and no taxes were deducted at the source. Therefore, income tax will be owed for the full amount received. The CRSB, CRCB and CRB programs are part of the second wave of federal pandemic support, and 10 per cent of tax is being withheld at the source. It's important to understand if you are in a position where taxes may be owed. We and your accountant can help you look into the finer details of these programs and calculate if you will need to pay additional tax.

RRSPs and TFSAs

Along with the new tax credit programs listed above, a couple of other investment programs can help you establish some savings, while also offsetting taxes.

A Tax-Free Savings Account (TFSA) lets you contribute $6,000 annually and withdrawals are not subject to tax. It can be a great way to save for a trip, a home purchase or even have some retirement funds available outside of a Registered Retirement Savings Plan (RRSP). Unused contribution room is carried forward every year and can really add up. Since the program began in 2009, you could potentially have as much as $75,500 in contribution room.

Another way to shelter against taxes while also planning for the future is setting up regular deposits into an RRSP. Contributions are tax-deductible and investments grow tax-free within the account. While withdrawals are subject to tax, you benefit if your tax rate at that time is less than when you contributed.

Taxes are an important part of maintaining a thriving Canadian economy, where roads are kept in good repair, healthcare is freely available to everyone, and our social programs are maintained. But tax credits and other programs are there to help ensure that you aren't overpaying. A tax refund indicates you may be paying too much. Let us help you figure out tax strategies that can help you reap more of the benefits of your hard-earned dollars.

Public Consultation Notice

The Town of Rocanville has been working hard with engineers to find ways to alleviate the flooding on the east end of Robin Avenue. One of the proposed methods is the creation of a retention pond on the east side against the mine road. Council was also planning on pumping the excess water to the golf course to top up their dug outs to assist with irrigation. Due to the pond's depth this area will need to be fenced so the idea of an off-leash dog park was suggested along with walking trails to and from this area.

We are now able to provide draft drawings and we are requesting ratepayer input into the proposed ideas put before council.

The Dog Park will include picnic tables and benches, garbage cans and recycling bins, there will be doggy bag stations and a large open area for dogs to run. The walking trail will also have benches and a picnic area. We have included a plan of the retention pond and dog park along with ideas for the walking trails. We are asking for the public's comments on this proposal and if you wish to see a large copy of the proposal please stop by the Town Office, otherwise please email your comments to rocanville.town@sasktel.net.

Council will vote on this proposal on the 21st April, 2021

Rocanville Aquatic Center April

The Rocanville Aquatic Center will be opening to the public in April. The schedule will be a bit inconsistent through out April as we try to accommodate training courses and COVID guidelines.

COVID Regulations:

- Maximum of 30 swimmers in the water at a time for public swims and rentals.
- maximum of 8 swimmers for lane swim and Aquafit
- Everyone entering the pool must wear a mask, use hand sanitizer and practice social distancing while on deck.
- Masks may be removed upon entering the water but we ask that social distancing is still practiced.
- Children under the age of 10 must be accompanied by someone 14 years or older.
- We ask that swimmers come in with their suits on and consider leaving with them on as well (shower at home) to minimize time spent in the change rooms.
- Please do not attend if you are feeling at all unwell.

What's New:

Sr. Swim - Starting April 20th, we will be offering a swim that is just for our seniors. During this time you may choose to swim some laps, do some of your own water aerobics, ask for some guidance from our guards on deck or just float. To ensure that there is room for you to attend we ask that you call ahead and reserve a spot (645-2164).

Noon lane swim - Beginning April 20th we will be offering a noon lane swim from 12:00-1:30. Come any time between 12:00 and 1:30 and swim some laps over your lunch hour. To ensure that there is room for you to attend we ask that you call ahead and reserve a spot (645-2164).

Rentals:

For the moment we will only be accepting pool rentals of a maximum of 30 swimmers. As COVID restrictions relax we hope to offer birthday party rentals again.

We are now accepting registration for summer lessons. Please call the Rec Office to register your child (645-2164).
