The Rocanville Playground Committee would like to thank Universe Satellite Sales for sponsoring GX94 Star Search. A heartfelt thanks also goes out to all of the community members that show their continuing support by attending our fundraising events! We can't forget our volunteers, thanks a million for taking time out of your busy schedules to lend a helping hand! Borderland Coop, The World Spectator and Johnston's Grain also helped make this event possible.

Thank You!

The playground committee is working on some fun and exciting fundraisers to take place in 2017 !!

Rocanville Playground Committee

The current wooden play structure is 30 plus years old and is beyond repair. Playground equipment is very, costly and we have been working hard at this but still have a long way to go.

This project will be funded solely by donations and fundraising efforts. A new community playground will bring joy to the community for many years to come! If you would like to make a donation, please send a cheque made out to Rocanville Playground Committee to:

Box 450

Celebrate Canada's 150th

Did you know shopping local can.....

Get real value for yourself:

Reader surveys by the consumers union repeatedly show independent businesses beating their chain competitors in overall customer satisfaction (and often save you money).

Increase wealth of residents:

The multiplier effect created by spending locally generates lasting impact on the prosperity of local organizations and residents.

Enhance health of residents:

Research shows a strong correlation between the percentage of locally owned businesses and various indicators of personal and community health and vitality.

Canada 150 Splash and Dash

What is that?

Wanting a family challenge to celebrate Canada's 150th year? This is it! On Saturday June 17, at the Rocanville Aquatic Center many two person teams consisting of one student (any grade) and one adult (any age) will team together, swim 150 meters (one after the other like a tag team), then run 1500 meters together. Simple, fun, challenging. Be one of 150 Canadians to do it! Swim distances will vary according to student age, and heh, everyone that completes the challenge gets an awesome Canada 150 souvenir. Of course, there is a modest entry fee - it is a fitness fund raiser.

Invite your friends and relatives!

SERIOUS SICKNESS DOESN'T HAVE TO SIDELINE FINANCES

Younger people may need critical illness protection more than life insurance

Most 20- and 30-somethings may not think a lot about insurance. If you are young, healthy and low on savings, you may feel that it is a priority, especially if you haven't started a family. But it could be important for you- and the kind of insurance that makes sense might be surprising.

Traditionally, the first policy many people buy is term life insurance. It's a straight forward, affordable solution that pays a tax free lump sum to a beneficiary upon the death of the insured. But over the next few decades Canadians in their 20s and 30s are more likely to be diagnosed with and survive.

To put this into perspective, a woman who is 30 and a non-smoker has a 5 percent chance of dying before age 65-but a 19 percent chance of getting a critical illness. A man who is 30 and a non-smoker has a seven percent chance of dying before age 65-but a 27 percent chance of getting a critical illness.

If you do get sick and have to take time away from work to recover, the combination of lower income and higher costs due to unexpected medical bills can have a significant effect on finances and the ability to live your accustomed lifestyle. Plus, if your partner decides to take time away from work to help with care, this might further reduce household income.

What's your risk?

In 2016, across all age groups:
-about 200,000 Canadians were diagnosed with cancer
-about 50,000 Canadians were diagnosed with heart failure

To calculate your risk of developing a critical illness, visit insurerright.ca.

Picking a plan

Basic, affordable critical illness protection can help ease financial stresses at a time when a sick person's energy should be focused on getting better. The money can allow time and space to recover. Perhaps most importantly, it can provide flexibility to choose how long to take off before getting back to work and the daily routine.

How do you choose the right kind of policy? Many younger people start out with reasonably priced term critical illness insurance that covers them for a specific number of years. When the term is up the policy can be renewed for another term. Prior to expiry, it can also be 'switched' to a more permanent plan that provides lifelong coverage. Often, there's no need for additional underwriting- which means you can stay protected even if your health changes.

The dollar amount of protection depends on each individual's specific circumstances. How much income will you need while recovering? If you have a partner or loved one, will it allow him or her to also take time off work to help with caretaking? For those who have kids, will extra child care add to costs during this time?

Other factors should also be considered. Policies may cover different illnesses or offer extra benefits-such as reliable online health information, one-on-one telephone support or a medical second opinion service from top specialists at world-class hospitals. The insured often get access to these services as soon as they get coverage which can make it easier to get credible information on symptoms, diagnosis and treatment.
